

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

tors, making it plain, that there were fraudulent agents working among training school pupils and graduates, who did not turn the money over to us. One of these agents, who has been operating under the name of Belmont, and whose name is really Bellman, has been arrested in New York City and is now serving a two-year sentence, having defrauded other magazines as well as our own. It was due to the sagacity of one of the social service nurses in New York that he was apprehended. This young man has a brother at large who was associated with him who is still operating under the name of Jean DeLisle or of George Belmont.

We wish to urge again that our subscribers should send their money directly to this office. Our only authorized solicitors are trained nurses who are well known in their communities and who always can show credentials if desired.

AN APOLOGY

We owe The Trained Nurse an apology for publishing in our April number an article, Segregation of the Defective Delinquent, which had appeared in that magazine for January. We understood from the letter which accompanied the manuscript that the contribution was intended for the JOURNAL exclusively. Most of our readers understand that it is a breach of journalistic courtesy to offer the same material to two magazines at once, but occasionally some one fails to grasp the ethics of the situation.